

FERNANDA URIEGAS

43 Brooklyn Ave Apt. 3C, Brooklyn, NY 11216 | fu2121@columbia.edu | 917.783.1218 | fernandauriegas.com

EXPERIENCE

Associate Podcast Producer, Hueman Group Media

CONTRACT / 12HRS PER WEEK / NEW YORK. / FEB. 2020 – PRESENT

Contribute to the production of several podcasts focused on social change. Conduct research, guest outreach, clean up audio, edit episodes, write scripts and manage social media.

New York Women's Foundation Fellow, NPR's Latino USA

NEW YORK. / AUG. 2019 – NOV. 2019

Reported on a story about the state's Child Victims Act. Pitched, researched, wrote, reported and produced a two-way episode with the writer for Marvel's first Latina superhero about her experience being harassed by alt-right trolls.

Editorial Intern, Americas Quarterly

NEW YORK. / JAN 2019 – JULY 2019

Researched and wrote for web and print issues about China's relationship with Latin America and on anti-corruption movements in the region. Web articles (500 - 800 words) include Cuba's constitutional referendum, corruption in Panama's government and extortion of small business owners in Mexico. Wrote three profiles of women entrepreneurs. Conducted research and created informative listicles of presidential candidates in Latin America, Chinese consumer goods and main corruption cases in the region.

Contributor Writer, Forbes

NEW YORK. / FEB 2018 – JAN 2019

Wrote five articles about undocumented entrepreneurs. I was asked to become a contributor after I pitched a story about a six-figure business owner who was deported back to Mexico after running a red light. Articles include a and a DREAMer who created apps for undocumented immigrants and was threatened to be deported. Wrote about Immigrants Rising, an organization that trains undocumented immigrants to become entrepreneurs and about Latinotech, a company for Latinos in the technology industry.

EDUCATION

Columbia Journalism School

NEW YORK, N.Y. / MAY 2017

Master of Science. Received Maria Moors Cabot Scholarship Award for students interested in journalism from outside of the United States. Coursework included investigative techniques, audio, digital publishing, photo and feature writing. Covered beat in the Bronx with a focus on the criminal justice system, covering issues such as wrongful conviction, how the ability to post bail disadvantages low-income people, and juvenile incarceration.

Amsterdam University College

AMSTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS / MAY 2015

Bachelor of Arts in sociology and anthropology, creative writing minor, summa cum laude. Wrote thesis about the gender impact of Oportunidades, Mexico's former social assistance program for poor women. Semester abroad at McGill University, took courses on social stratification and the role of gender in development.

Mahindra United World College of India

PAUD, INDIA/ MAY 2012

International Baccalaureate (IB) Diploma Program (DP). Selected among 800 students to study for two high school years at a United World College in India, with people from over 60 nations.

SKILLS

Languages: Spanish native speaker.
Fluent in reading/writing/speaking English.

Web: WordPress, CMS.

Audio: Pro Tools, Adobe Audition, Ableton, iZotope RX, Audacity.

Social Media: Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, LinkedIn.

Memberships: National Association of Hispanic Journalists.

REFERENCES

Sophia Paliza-Carre

Editor at NPR's Latino USA

317-997-6292

sophia@latinousa.org

Cecilia Tornaghi

Managing Editor at Americas Quarterly

212-277-8391

ctornaghi@as-coa.org

Dale Maharidge

Professor at Columbia Journalism School

212-854-3854

dm2021@columbia.edu